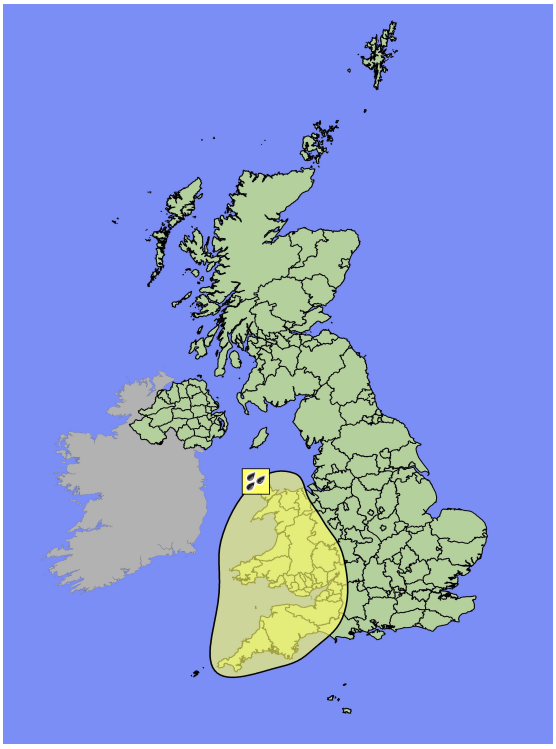
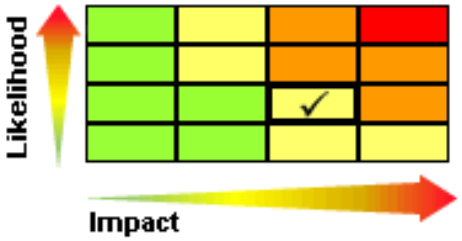
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Another depression is expected to move northeastwards bringing periods of heavy rain to southwest England and Wales. The heavy rain is not expected to be as widespread as on Saturday and there are also some uncertainties with the location and intensity of the heaviest rainfall. Accumulations of 10-20 mm seem likely, with the risk of 30-40 mm locally, mainly over North Wales.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Rain

Valid from 12:00 on Sun, 25th Nov 2012 until 23:59 on Sun, 25th Nov 2012

After a drier interlude, further heavy rain is expected to affect Wales and southwestern parts of England during Sunday afternoon and evening. Given existing levels of saturation, the public should be aware of the risk of localised flooding.
